CAPONE TO PRISON, 11 YEARS

Mrs. Judd Confesses; Asserts She Killed in Defense of Gun Attack

Phoenix, Ariz., Oct. 24.—(U.P.)—Gov. George W. P. Hunt signed extradition papers today for Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, held in Los Angeles on a charge of murdering Agnes Lerol and Hedvig Samuelson, and shortly thereafter Sheriff J. R. McFadden left by airplane for Los Angeles with the extradition request.

By GEORGE H. BEALE
United Press Staff Correspondent
Los Angeles, Oct. 24.—(U.P.)—Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, 27, comely blonde, was held today on a charge that she murdered two former room-mates in Phoenix, Ariz.

Selecting a funeral parlor as the scene, she voluntarily surrendered last night to police officers who had sought her for almost 100 hours.

She told them that she shot Miss Hedvig Samuelson, 27, and Mrs. Agnes Lerol, 25, in self defense.

Chief of Detectives Joe Taylor said she admitted dissecting the body of Miss Samuelson and then packing and shipping both bodies from Phoenix to Los Angeles as luggage.

Since the discovery of the bodies in two trunks and a suitcase here Monday, and while thousands of police hunted her from Mexico to Canada, she stayed "here and there in downtown Los Angeles."

Shows Gun Wound
She exhibited a bullet in her left hand to support her contention that the killings were acts of self defense. Taylor said she claimed she had no accomplice.

The comely, 27-year-old woman, was questioned at great length by Arizona and California officials but she composedly stuck by the story she told.

She refused to answer many questions and declined to elaborate much on any point, including the motive. When asked why she shipped the bodies to Los Angeles, she merely shook her head.

Slaying Followed Scuffle
Her story, as repeated by Taylor, was that she herself started the fatal argument when she made an uncompromising remark about Mrs. Lerol while visiting the two girls Friday night.

"I killed them after Miss Samuelson shot me in the hand during the quarrel," she was quoted by Taylor as saying.

"I scuffled with Miss Samuelson and the gun dropped to the floor. Mrs. Lerol hit me on the head with an ironing board. I fell to the floor. I picked up Miss Samuelson's gun. Then I shot them both."

Fearful of being detected if she appeared at a physician's office or a hospital, Mrs. Judd had suffered the painful wound for a week with only applications of "home remedies." Police surgeons said the hand was badly infected and anti-toxin was administered to guard against gangrene or lockjaw.

Surrender Dramatic
Mrs. Judd's surrender was as unusual as it was dramatic.

Knowing that her husband, Dr. William C. Judd, Santa Monica physician, had engaged attorneys to represent her, she telephoned him several times during the day.

She disrobed of each suggested meeting place, however, until Cantillon finally mentioned a funeral parlor operated by an old and close friend of his.

A wake was in progress in the mortuary when a dozen authorities and 50 newspapermen descended upon it. One mortuary attendant was knocked down when he attempted to prevent Detective Inspector David Davidson from entering the upstairs room where Mrs. Judd was secluded.

Mrs. Judd finally came down to go to headquarters.

Mrs. Judd was wearing a green sports outfit, and a fur trimmed black coat. She wore no stockings or hat and carried no handbag.

Her hand was swathed in an ungainly white bandage.

"Look up, Ruth, look up!" a photographer called.

She did, then winced as a dozen flash bulbs exploded.

As relatives and police crowded in to get in camera range, Mrs. Judd appeared the most composed person in the room despite her weakened condition.

"God, but I feel sick," the woman, a tubercular, said.

"How long since you've eaten?" a reporter asked.

"She's had one meal in four days," Dr. Judd answered for her. "You see she had very little money."

Mrs. Judd was taken from the mortuary to the hospital.

"I've Told Everything"
"I've told them everything," she said when she was given gas. "Don't let them question me any more and please make them stop taking pictures."

From the hospital, she was taken to the detective bureau. Hours later, detectives admitted Mrs. Judd "almost defied questioning" and that she gave them little information.

A fight over extradition developed

ADMITS SLAYING TWO ROOM MATES, DISSECTING BODIES AND SHIPPING THE REMAINS IN A TRUNK

Los Angeles, Oct. 24.—Winnie Ruth Judd, who has admitted she killed two former friends and sent their bodies here as luggage from Phoenix, Ariz., was not able to view the dressing of a minor wound in her own hand today.

She turned her head and then put her hand over her face as a nurse removed the bandage to treat the wound.

Mrs. Judd claims she received the gunshot wound in a fight that led to the deaths of Miss Hedvig Samuelson and Mrs. Agnes Lerol. Arizona officials contend Mrs. Judd shot herself in the hand after killing the two girls.

HUNT 2 PRISONERS IN JAIL BREAK THAT TOOK TOLL OF THREE

2 OTHER PRISONERS ATTEMPT- ING ESCAPE DEAD; PATROL- MAN SLAIN

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 24.—(U.P.)—Police of three states organized a man hunt today for two survivors of a group of four prisoners who broke from state prison late yesterday, shooting down one guard, and killing a patrolman in a gun fight.

Their two companions were killed an hour after the break, in the woods near Langhorne, Pa., one of them had fatally wounded a Pennsylvania state patrolman. One killed himself.

The prisoners sought are Frank Seibert and James Stoddard.

The dead men were James McGrath and Jack Weirman.

McGrath, cornered in the woods, shot Trooper Joseph Campbell before being shot down by another trooper. Campbell died several hours later in the St. Francis hospital.

McGrath and Weirman had obtained their weapons when their companions shot John D. White, a guard at the prison, and seized his pistol and riot gun.

The break occurred yesterday when Edward Landwehr, a civilian electrician, left a ladder leaning against the prison wall.

Coal is found in almost all parts of Colombia, the resources of its better known regions being estimated at 27,000,000 metric tons.

Immediately, County Attorney Lloyd Andrews of Phoenix asked for extradition papers but Attorney Cantillon was granted a writ of habeas corpus, returnable Nov. 3 and preventing her from being taken from Los Angeles county until after arguments there.

Arizona officials bitterly assailed Mrs. Judd's story. They said they did not believe her story of self defense, nor her claim that she had no accomplice.

Although a sedative was given Mrs. Judd was able only to "cat nap" through her first night in jail, matrons said.

Reporters were permitted to go to her cell when she awakened. She was pleasant with them but declined to discuss her case.

"My attorneys advised me not to say anything," she said, "and I guess I'd better listen to them."

By a nod she admitted that she had had only one meal in four days but she declined the regular jail breakfast and took only orange juice.

Shortly after she finished she was called again to detective headquarters for further questioning.

Detective Chief Joe Taylor admitted an hour later that "little progress, if any" had been made.

"I can't talk about that," and "I don't want to talk about that" were the most frequent answers she gave, he said.

"Most of the time she just shook her head," Taylor said.

During her brief talk with reporters, Mrs. Judd was asked if she trusted anyone.

"No, I've lost faith in everyone," she said, but quickly corrected herself. "That isn't true, either. I trust my husband, of course, and my attorneys. It's just that I can't talk, can't answer any questions."

ATTEMPT TO LINK HUMAN FLY WITH BANK RAID PLANS

MEANWHILE POSSES CONTINUE SEARCH FOR KILLERS NEAR EAU CLAIRE

Ashland, Wis., Oct. 24.—(U.P.)—Three sheriffs and 20 deputies resumed their search in the Eau Claire lakes district of Bayfield and Douglas counties today for the two surviving Kraft State Bank robbers.

Sheriff Elmer Sanders of Ashland said he was certain the fugitives had taken refuge in the "barrens" since tracks of their automobile were found in the vicinity Thursday.

Menominee, Wis., Oct. 24.—(U.P.)—The possibility that a human fly appearing in Menominee the night before the hold-up of the Kraft State Bank may have been acquainted with members of the bandit gang which raided the bank and engaged in a gun battle in which three men were killed, was investigated today by county authorities.

Citizens said the human fly, Bob White, had been seen with Frank Webster, alias Webster, bandit whose dead body was found near Wheeler. Deputy Sheriff Charles Govin questioned several women who claimed they saw the two together.

Govin today refused to reveal whether the questioning had uncovered any new clues, but admitted he was looking for White for questioning.

Meanwhile a second dead bandit, found near Shell Lake, was identified as Charles Preston Harmon, a former convict from Texas. The identification was made by Melvin Passolt, head of the Minnesota criminal bureau.

White came to Menominee to take part in an advertising scheme. He climbed the side of the Marion hotel the night before the hold-up. According to Govin, two women were known to have said that they saw White shaking hands and conversing with Webster after the human fly had climbed the building.

Four men answering the description of the bandits were registered in the Marion hotel the night before the hold-up and shootings. Clerks, however, were unable to identify Webster's body as one of the four.

Govin said that he was interested in the human fly angle of the case, and would not divulge the names of any persons who said they saw White and Webster together.

Sheriff's posse searching the woods where Harmon's body was found also discovered the machine gun used in the hold-up as well as some of the negotiable securities stolen from the bank.

Townsmen still irate over the slaying of James Kraft, 19, son of the bank's president, W. F. Kraft, have pledged their support to all efforts to trace down the remaining members of the bandit gang.

W. R. Kraft, 22, another son and employee of the bank, was recovering in the hospital from a bullet wound inflicted by one of the bandits during the hold-up.

Reno, Nev., Oct. 24.—(U.P.)—Pauline Lord, stage actress and star of "Strange Interlude" was named today in a divorce suit filed by Owen B. Winter, prominent advertising man who alleged extreme cruelty. The Winters were married in Elkton, Md., April 27, 1929.

Columbus, O., Oct. 24.—(U.P.)—The whirling center propeller of a trimotored transport airplane today sheared the right arm from John Doan, 35, inspector of mechanics at Port Columbus. It was the third fatality at the airport since it was founded and became transfer point for trans-continental train plane service.

SEARCH FILES FOR IDENTIFICATION OF KILLER SUSPECT

GUARD HOUSE AFTER EX-COUNTY ATTORNEY RECEIVES THREATENING LETTER

Rapid City, S. D., Oct. 23.—(U.P.)—Files in district court were ransacked today by county officials in an effort to identify a former convict who it was believed shot and killed W. P. Baken, former sheriff, and threatened the life of Turner Rudesil, former county attorney.

Meanwhile a guard was posted at Rudesil's home after receipt by police of a letter warning that the former county attorney would be killed. The letter read:

"I said I was going to kill Billy Baken and I did. I am going away for a few days and come back and kill the state's attorney for sending me up for a crime I never committed. Try and get me if you can."

"Ex-Convict"
Baken was shot to death by an unidentified man who entered his home Monday night and fired six shots into the former official's body. Baken had received a similar letter before his death. The handwriting in the two letters was identical, officials said.

Express Theories of Social Decline

Cleveland, O., Oct. 24.—(U.P.)—Weakness in the administration of criminal justice in the average American city is attributed by Newton D. Baker, member of the Wickersham commission, to the "decline of the generalized sense of social responsibility, the lack of sympathy on the part of the people toward the police, the injection of political influence in the administration and the unique problems presented by American cities."

To Dean Roscoe Pound of the Harvard law school and a fellow member of the commission, the weakness is caused by the "inability of the present generation to adjust itself to the complexities of life in modern urban communities in the period of transition from the rural, local, economically self-sufficient community to the congested metropolitan community when the laws are not well adapted."

The two delivered their observations last night in addresses to the Cleveland Bar Association and the Cleveland Association for Criminal Justice which observed the 10th anniversary of its founding.

'Man of Kindness' Revealed as Escaped Convict 16 Years Ago; Woman Discloses His Identity; Community Pleads for Parole

Mason City, W. Va., Oct. 24.—(U.P.)—Sixteen years of living a "model" life were blotted from the memory of Charles Cundiff, 40, today by a relentless justice, which again made him a prisoner in Ohio penitentiary.

The cycle of Cundiff's life had taken him back to the prison from which he escaped 16 years ago when he walked away from a prison camp. After his escape, Cundiff changed his conduct. His record as a citizen here was perfect. He provided a home and cared for three aged persons, two of them blind. He became noted as a "man of kindness."

Ohio authorities learned of Cundiff's whereabouts through a woman who had become angry at him, it was said. He had washed the woman's house, preparatory to painting and she felt the labor bill of $20 was too high. She purportedly informed penitentiary officials.

Citizens and friends of Cundiff, who have known him only as an upright citizen, were enroute to Columbus, O., today to appear before Warden P. E. Thomas and the Ohio board of pardons with a plea that Cundiff be released when he was sentenced, and that the community he had made his own "needed him."

Columbus, O., Oct. 24.—(U.P.)—Governor George White told the United Press today that he would grant a pardon to Charles Cundiff, 40, Mason City, W. Va., if representations of the man's friends enroute here convinced him such action was warranted.

WOMAN STICKS FOR ACQUITTAL; FOSHAY JURY IS DISMISSED

11 MEN FAVORING CONVICTION FAIL TO CONVINCE WOMAN TRIAL COST $35,000

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 24.—(U.P.)—Refusal of the lone woman juror to exercise the feminine prerogative of change in her mind brought an end to the trial of W. H. Foshay and six associates on charges of using the mails to defraud.

The federal court jury was dismissed late yesterday afternoon when it reported it stood 11 to 1 for conviction. Mrs. Genevieve A. Clark, the woman juror, was the only one favoring acquittal. Despite the efforts of the eleven men, she would not change her mind, it was said.

Mrs. Clark was sick during part of the deliberation and Judge Joseph W. Molyneux ordered the discharge after reports were circulated that she had fainted during the noon recess. The case had been in the jury's hands for a week. They worked regular court hours during that time.

Judge Molyneux set January 11 as the date for a new trial.

The trial ran for 53 days and cost the government approximately $35,000. Each juror received $212 plus transportation.

Foshay, whose boyhood dream of building a replica of the Washington monument was realized less than two months before his $300,000 public utility concerns, was one of the leading northwest financiers until the collapse of his organization in November, 1929.

HEAVY FINE IS LEVIED

By RAY BLACK
United Press Staff Correspondent
Federal Building, Chicago, Oct. 24.—(U.P.)—Al Capone was sentenced today to 11 years imprisonment and fined $50,000 on charges of evading payment of $215,000 federal income tax on his underworld profits.

The sentence, pronounced by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, marked the culmination of the government's drive to rid Chicago of gangsters by striking at their illicit stores of wealth derived from gambling, liquor and vice. Capone, the real objective of the two-year campaign that sent the flower of the nation's law enforcement into the underworld of Chicago for evidence was the seventh gangster to be convicted or plead guilty to evasion of income tax.

Serve Terms Concurrently
Under the sentence, Capone was ordered to spend five years in the penitentiary under conviction of count No. 1 of the indictment, five years under count No. 5, those two to be served concurrently and five years under count No. 9, to be served consecutively. The felony count sentences totaled 10 years.

On each of the two misdemeanor counts, he was sentenced to year in the county jail. They are to run concurrently.

The fines were $10,000 on each of the counts, amounting to $50,000 in all.

Ordered to Jail
A writ of supersedeas was denied by Judge Wilkerson, who had preceded sentence by denying the defense motion for arrest of judgment. Capone was ordered to jail "forthwith."

Capone was markedly nervous as he rose and walked before the bench for sentence. He kept twisting his fingers behind his back and fingering the bandage on a cut right index finger.

When sentence had been spoken, he gave a short nervous laugh, more like a hiccup. He seemed relieved when Defense Attorneys Fink and Ahern stepped to his side to dispute about the sentence.

The big gangster wore a pepper and salt blue serge suit of pinch-back effect. His flashing jewels and platinum and gold ornaments were not in evidence.

Until the moment he was called to step before the judge and hear the penalty for his decade of dominion over underworld rackets that have contributed reported millions to his coffers, Capone sucked on a cough drop.

He gulped it down hurriedly when Judge Wilkerson summoned him to step to the bench.

Public Enemy One Wilts
When Judge Wilkerson ordered him to jail "forthwith" the gang leader who has been pictured to the public as the power behind many killings though never convicted of any, seemed to sag. His thumbs twitched and he fingered his cut finger. Finally after gulping a couple of times, he forced a smile at his attorneys, Michael Ahern and Albert Fink, came to his side.

Fink addressed the judge: "Your honor, won't you show a little leniency to our client?" he asked. "I think I will adhere to my ruling," Judge Wilkerson said.

"Goodbye, you did your best," Capone said to his attorneys. He shook hands with both Fink and Ahern and then was led to Marshal H. C. Laubenhimer's office preparatory to going to a cell, the first one in Chicago he has ever occupied during his ten years of heading the rackets.

Marshal Laubenhimer said he was prepared to take Capone to Leavenworth penitentiary tonight or early tomorrow if the government officials so order.

Capone was scheduled to await decisions as to his removal to the penitentiary in a county jail.

In the meantime, Capone was put into a cell that ordinarily is used for young criminals, built especially to keep youthful offenders from contact with hardened criminals in the regular federal building "bull pen."

Capone marched behind the heavy screen without saying a word and sat down alone to await the government's pleasure.

SEARCH FOR KILLERS NEAR EAU CLAIRE

Ashland, Wis., Oct. 24.—(U.P.)—Three sheriffs and 20 deputies resumed their search in the Eau Claire lakes district of Bayfield and Douglas counties today for the two surviving Kraft State Bank robbers.

Sheriff Elmer Sanders of Ashland said he was certain the fugitives had taken refuge in the "barrens" since tracks of their automobile were found in the vicinity Thursday.

Menominee, Wis., Oct. 24.—(U.P.)—The possibility that a human fly appearing in Menominee the night before the hold-up of the Kraft State Bank may have been acquainted with members of the bandit gang which raided the bank and engaged in a gun battle in which three men were killed, was investigated today by county authorities.

Citizens said the human fly, Bob White, had been seen with Frank Webster, alias Webster, bandit whose dead body was found near Wheeler. Deputy Sheriff Charles Govin questioned several women who claimed they saw the two together.

Govin today refused to reveal whether the questioning had uncovered any new clues, but admitted he was looking for White for questioning.

Meanwhile a second dead bandit, found near Shell Lake, was identified as Charles Preston Harmon, a former convict from Texas. The identification was made by Melvin Pasosol, head of the Minnesota criminal bureau.

White came to Menominee to take part in an advertising scheme. He climbed the side of the Marion hotel the night before the hold-up. According to Govin, two women were known to have said that they saw White shaking hands and conversing with Webster after the human fly had climbed the building.

Four men answering the description of the bandits were registered in the Marion hotel the night before the hold-up and shootings. Clerks, however, were unable to identify Webster's body as one of the four.

Govin said that he was interested in the human fly angle of the case, and would not divulge the names of any persons who said they saw White and Webster together.

Sheriff's posse searching the woods where Harmon's body was found also discovered the machine gun used in the hold-up as well as some of the negotiable securities stolen from the bank.

Townsmen still irate over the slaying of James Kraft, 19, son of the bank's president, W. F. Kraft, have pledged their support to all efforts to trace down the remaining members of the bandit gang.

W. R. Kraft, 22, another son and employee of the bank, was recovering in the hospital from a bullet wound inflicted by one of the bandits during the hold-up.

Reno, Nev., Oct. 24.—(U.P.)—Pauline Lord, stage actress and star of "Strange Interlude" was named today in a divorce suit filed by Owen E. Winter, prominent advertising man who alleged extreme cruelty. The Winters were married in Elkton, Md., April 27, 1929.

It was the third fatality at the airport since it was founded and became transfer point for trans-continental train plane service.

SEARCH FILES FOR IDENTIFICATION OF KILLER SUSPECT

GUARD HOUSE AFTER EX-COUNTY ATTORNEY RECEIVES THREATENING LETTER

Rapid City, S. D., Oct. 23.—(U.P.)—Files in district court were ransacked today by county officials in an effort to identify a former convict who it was believed shot and killed W. P. Baken, former sheriff, and threatened the life of Turner Rudesil, former county attorney.

Meanwhile a guard was posted at Rudesil's home after receipt by police of a letter warning that the former county attorney would be killed. The letter read:

"I said I was going to kill Billy Baken and I did. I am going away for a few days and come back and kill the state's attorney for sending me up for a crime I never committed. Try and get me if you can."

"Ex-Convict"

Baken was shot to death by an unidentified man who entered his home Monday night and fired six shots into the former official's body. Baken had received a similar letter before his death. The handwriting in the two letters was identical, officials said.

Express Theories of Social Decline

Cleveland, O., Oct. 24.—(U.P.)—Weakness in the administration of criminal justice in the average American city is attributed by Newton D. Baker, member of the Wickersham commission, to the "decline of the generalized sense of social responsibility, the lack of sympathy on the part of the people toward the police, the injection of political influence in the administration and the unique problems presented by American cities."

To Dean Roscoe Pound of the Harvard law school and a fellow member of the commission, the weakness is caused by the "inability of the present generation to adjust itself to the complexities of life in modern urban communities in the period of transition from the rural, local, economically self-sufficient community to the congested metropolitan community when the laws are not well adapted."

The two delivered their observations last night in addresses to the Cleveland Bar Association and the Cleveland Association for Criminal Justice which observed the 10th anniversary of its founding.

'Man of Kindness' Revealed as Escaped Convict 16 Years Ago; Woman Discloses His Identity; Community Pleads for Parole

Mason City, W. Va., Oct. 24.—(U.P.)—Sixteen years of living a "model" life were blotted from the memory of Charles Cundiff, 40, today by a relentless justice, which again made him a prisoner in Ohio penitentiary.

The cycle of Cundiff's life had taken him back to the prison from which he escaped 16 years ago when he walked away from a prison camp.

After his escape, Cundiff changed his conduct. His record as a citizen here was perfect. He provided a home and cared for three aged persons, two of them blind. He became noted as a "man of kindness."

Ohio authorities learned of Cundiff's whereabouts through a woman who had become angry at him, it was said. He had washed the woman's house, preparatory to painting and she felt the labor bill of $20 was too high. She purportedly informed penitentiary officials.

Citizens and friends of Cundiff, who have known him only as an upright citizen, were enroute to Columbus, O., today to appear before Warden P. E. Thomas and the Ohio board of pardons with a plea that Cundiff shielded a friend when he was sentenced, and that the community he had made his own "needed him."

Columbus, O., Oct. 24.—(U.P.)—Governor George White told the United Press today that he would grant a pardon to Charles Cundiff, 40, Mason City, W. Va., if representations of the man's friends enroute here convinced him such action was warranted.

Cundiff, described as "a man of generous heart," was returned to Ohio penitentiary after building a record of 16 years of good citizenship at Mason City.

WOMAN STICKS FOR ACQUITTAL; FOSHAY JURY IS DISMISSED

11 MEN FAVORING CONVICTION
FAIL TO CONVINCE WOMAN
TRIAL COST $35,000

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 24.—(U.P.)—Refusal of the lone woman juror to exercise the feminine prerogative of change in her mind brought an end to the trial of W. B. Foshay and six associates on charges of using the mails to defraud.

The federal court jury was dismissed late yesterday afternoon when it reported it stood 11 to 1 for conviction. Mrs. Genevieve A. Clark, the woman juror, was the only one favoring acquittal. Despite the efforts of the eleven men, she would not change her mind, it was said.

Mrs. Clark was sick during part of the deliberation and Judge Joseph W. Molyneux ordered the discharge after reports were circulated that she had fainted during the noon recess. The case had been in the jury's hands for a week. They worked regular court hours during that time.

Judge Molyneux set January 11 as the date for a new trial.

The trial ran for 53 days and cost the government approximately $35,000. Each juror received $212 plus transportation.

Foshay, whose boyhood dream of building a replica of the Washington monument was realized less than two months before his $30,000,000 public utility concerns, was one of the leading northwest financiers until the collapse of his organization in November, 1929.

HEAVY FINE IS LEVIED

By RAY BLACK
United Press Staff Correspondent

Federal Building, Chicago, Oct. 24.—(U.P.)—Al Capone was sentenced today to 11 years imprisonment and fined $50,000 on charges of evading payment of $215,000 federal income tax on his underworld profits.

The sentence, pronounced by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, marked the culmination of the government's drive to rid Chicago of gangsters by striking at their illicit stores of wealth derived from gambling, liquor and vice. Capone, the real objective of the two-year campaign that sent the flower of the nation's law enforcement into the underworld of Chicago for evidence was the seventh gangster to be convicted or plead guilty to evasion of income tax.

Serve Terms Concurrently

Under the sentence, Capone was ordered to spend five years in the penitentiary under conviction of count No. 1 of the indictment, five years under count No. 5, those two to be served concurrently and five years under count No. 9, to be served consecutively. The felony count sentences totaled 10 years.

On each of the two misdemeanor counts, he was sentenced to year in the county jail. They are to run concurrently.

The fines were $10,000 on each of the counts, amounting to $50,000 in all.

Ordered to Jail

A writ of supersedeas was denied by Judge Wilkerson, who had preceded sentence by denying the defense motion for arrest of judgment. Capone was ordered to jail "forthwith."

Capone was markedly nervous as he rose and walked before the bench for sentence. He kept twisting his fingers behind his back and fingering the bandage on a cut right index finger.

When sentence had been spoken, he gave a short nervous laugh, more like a hicough. He seemed relieved when Defense Attorneys Fink and Ahern stepped to his side to dispute about the sentence.

The big gangster wore a pepper and salt blue serge suit of pinch-back effect. His flashing jewels and platinum and gold ornaments were not in evidence.

Until the moment he was called to step before the judge and hear the penalty for his decade of dominion over underworld rackets that have contributed reported millions to his coffers, Capone sucked on a cough drop.

He gulped it down hurriedly when Judge Wilkerson summoned him to step to the bench.

Public Enemy One Wits

When Judge Wilkerson ordered him to jail "forthwith" the gang leader who has been pictured to the public as the power behind many killings though never convicted of any, seemed to sag. His thumbs twitched and he fingered his cut finger. Finally after gulping a couple of times, he forced a smile as his attorneys, Michael Ahern and Albert Fink, came to his side.

Fink addressed the judge:

"Your honor, won't you show a little leniency to our client?" he asked. "I think I will adhere to my ruling," Judge Wilkerson said.

"Goodbye, did you best," Capone said to his attorneys. He shook hands with both Fink and Ahern and then was led to Marshal H. C. Laubheimer's office preparatory to going to a cell, the first one in Chicago he has ever occupied during his ten years of heading the rackets.

Marshal Laubheimer said he was prepared to take Capone to Leavenworth penitentiary tonight or early tomorrow if the government officials so order.

Capone was scheduled to await decisions as to his removal to the penitentiary in a county jail.

In the meantime, Capone was put into a cell that ordinarily is used for young criminals, built especially to keep youthful offenders from contact with hardened criminals in the regular federal building "bull pen."

Capone marched behind the heavy screen without saying a word and sat down alone to await the government's pleasure.

Farm Bureau Program Talked at Gilbert Meet

Gilbert Lake Farm Bureau unit held its regular meeting on Friday evening, October 23, at the Beaver Dam school house.

After the business meeting, a program was given. There were several songs by the Farm Bureau quartet; Mr. Hillard gave a talk on the Farm Bureau program for the coming year. A skit given by Mrs. Engelhart and Mrs. Clevenger, entitled "The Oil Stock Salesman" was much enjoyed by all. Mr. Opsahl gave a group of comic readings in the Swedish dialect which was voted the best number on the program.

It was decided to hold the meetings on the second Friday of each month. The next meeting will be held at the Kresh school house on November 13.

When the Brooklyn Bridge, connecting lower Manhattan with Brooklyn, and spanning the East River, was finished in 1883, (it was begun in 1870), it was thought the last word in bridges. But bridge builders have kept pace with the times and today can never rest upon its laurels, for tomorrow's achievements are certain to surpass.

Are not your eyes your best friends? How long since you had them examined thoroughly?
Of course, they are your eyes, and if you want to abuse them it's your privilege, but the cost of examination is very moderate, so why not be careful?

EVER think about how a ship travels? It points its bow out into a seemingly endless stretch of water and moves forward—yet it always reaches its destination. That's because the seas are charted, the way is planned. We've charted the sea to success for over 40 years. Our officers are sea captains of vision, ability and experience.

Farm Bureau Program Talked at Gilbert Meet

Gilbert Lake Farm Bureau unit held its regular meeting on Friday evening, October 23, at the Beaver Dam school house.
After the business meeting, a program was given. There were several songs by the Farm Bureau quartet; Mr. Hilliard gave a talk on the Farm Bureau program for the coming year. A skit given by Mrs. Engelhart and Mrs. Clevenger, entitled "The Oil Stock Salesman" was much enjoyed by all. Mr. Opsahl gave a group of comic readings in the Swedish dialect which was voted the best number on the program.

It was decided to hold the meetings on the second Friday of each month. The next meeting will be held at the Krech school house on November 13.

When the Brooklyn Bridge, connecting lower Manhattan with Brooklyn, and spanning the East River, was finished in 1883, (it was begun in 1870), it was thought the last word in bridges. But bridge builders have kept pace with the times and today can never rest upon its laurels, for tomorrow's achievements are certain to surpass.

BOOST BRAINERD BY BOOSTING HER RAILROADS!

BRAINERD is facing the crisis---it's time to wake up and face the facts about the future of our two great railroads. Passenger traffic has dwindled---freight shipments are below normal---employment is at a standstill, while we as residents of this great community stand by, idly waiting for a new turn of developments.

The time has arrived---and we must choose between the great common carriers of this country and individual methods of transportation. We must support directly RAILROADS, if those RAILROADS are to continue to serve, in an efficient manner, the territory which they pioneered and helped to build.

Brainerd, with its two great railroad systems, is more particularly interested, for it is by these institutions that normally support a large percentage of our entire populace. Is it not time now to see that the depressed business conditions in rail transportation, with its subsequent unemployment, be halted as quickly as possible?

These hundreds of railroad employees and their families comprise a huge purchasing power for Brainerd. Annual wages in excess of $1,750,000 normally are paid these workers, and will still continue to be paid if by wisdom and vision we can help restore normal conditions.

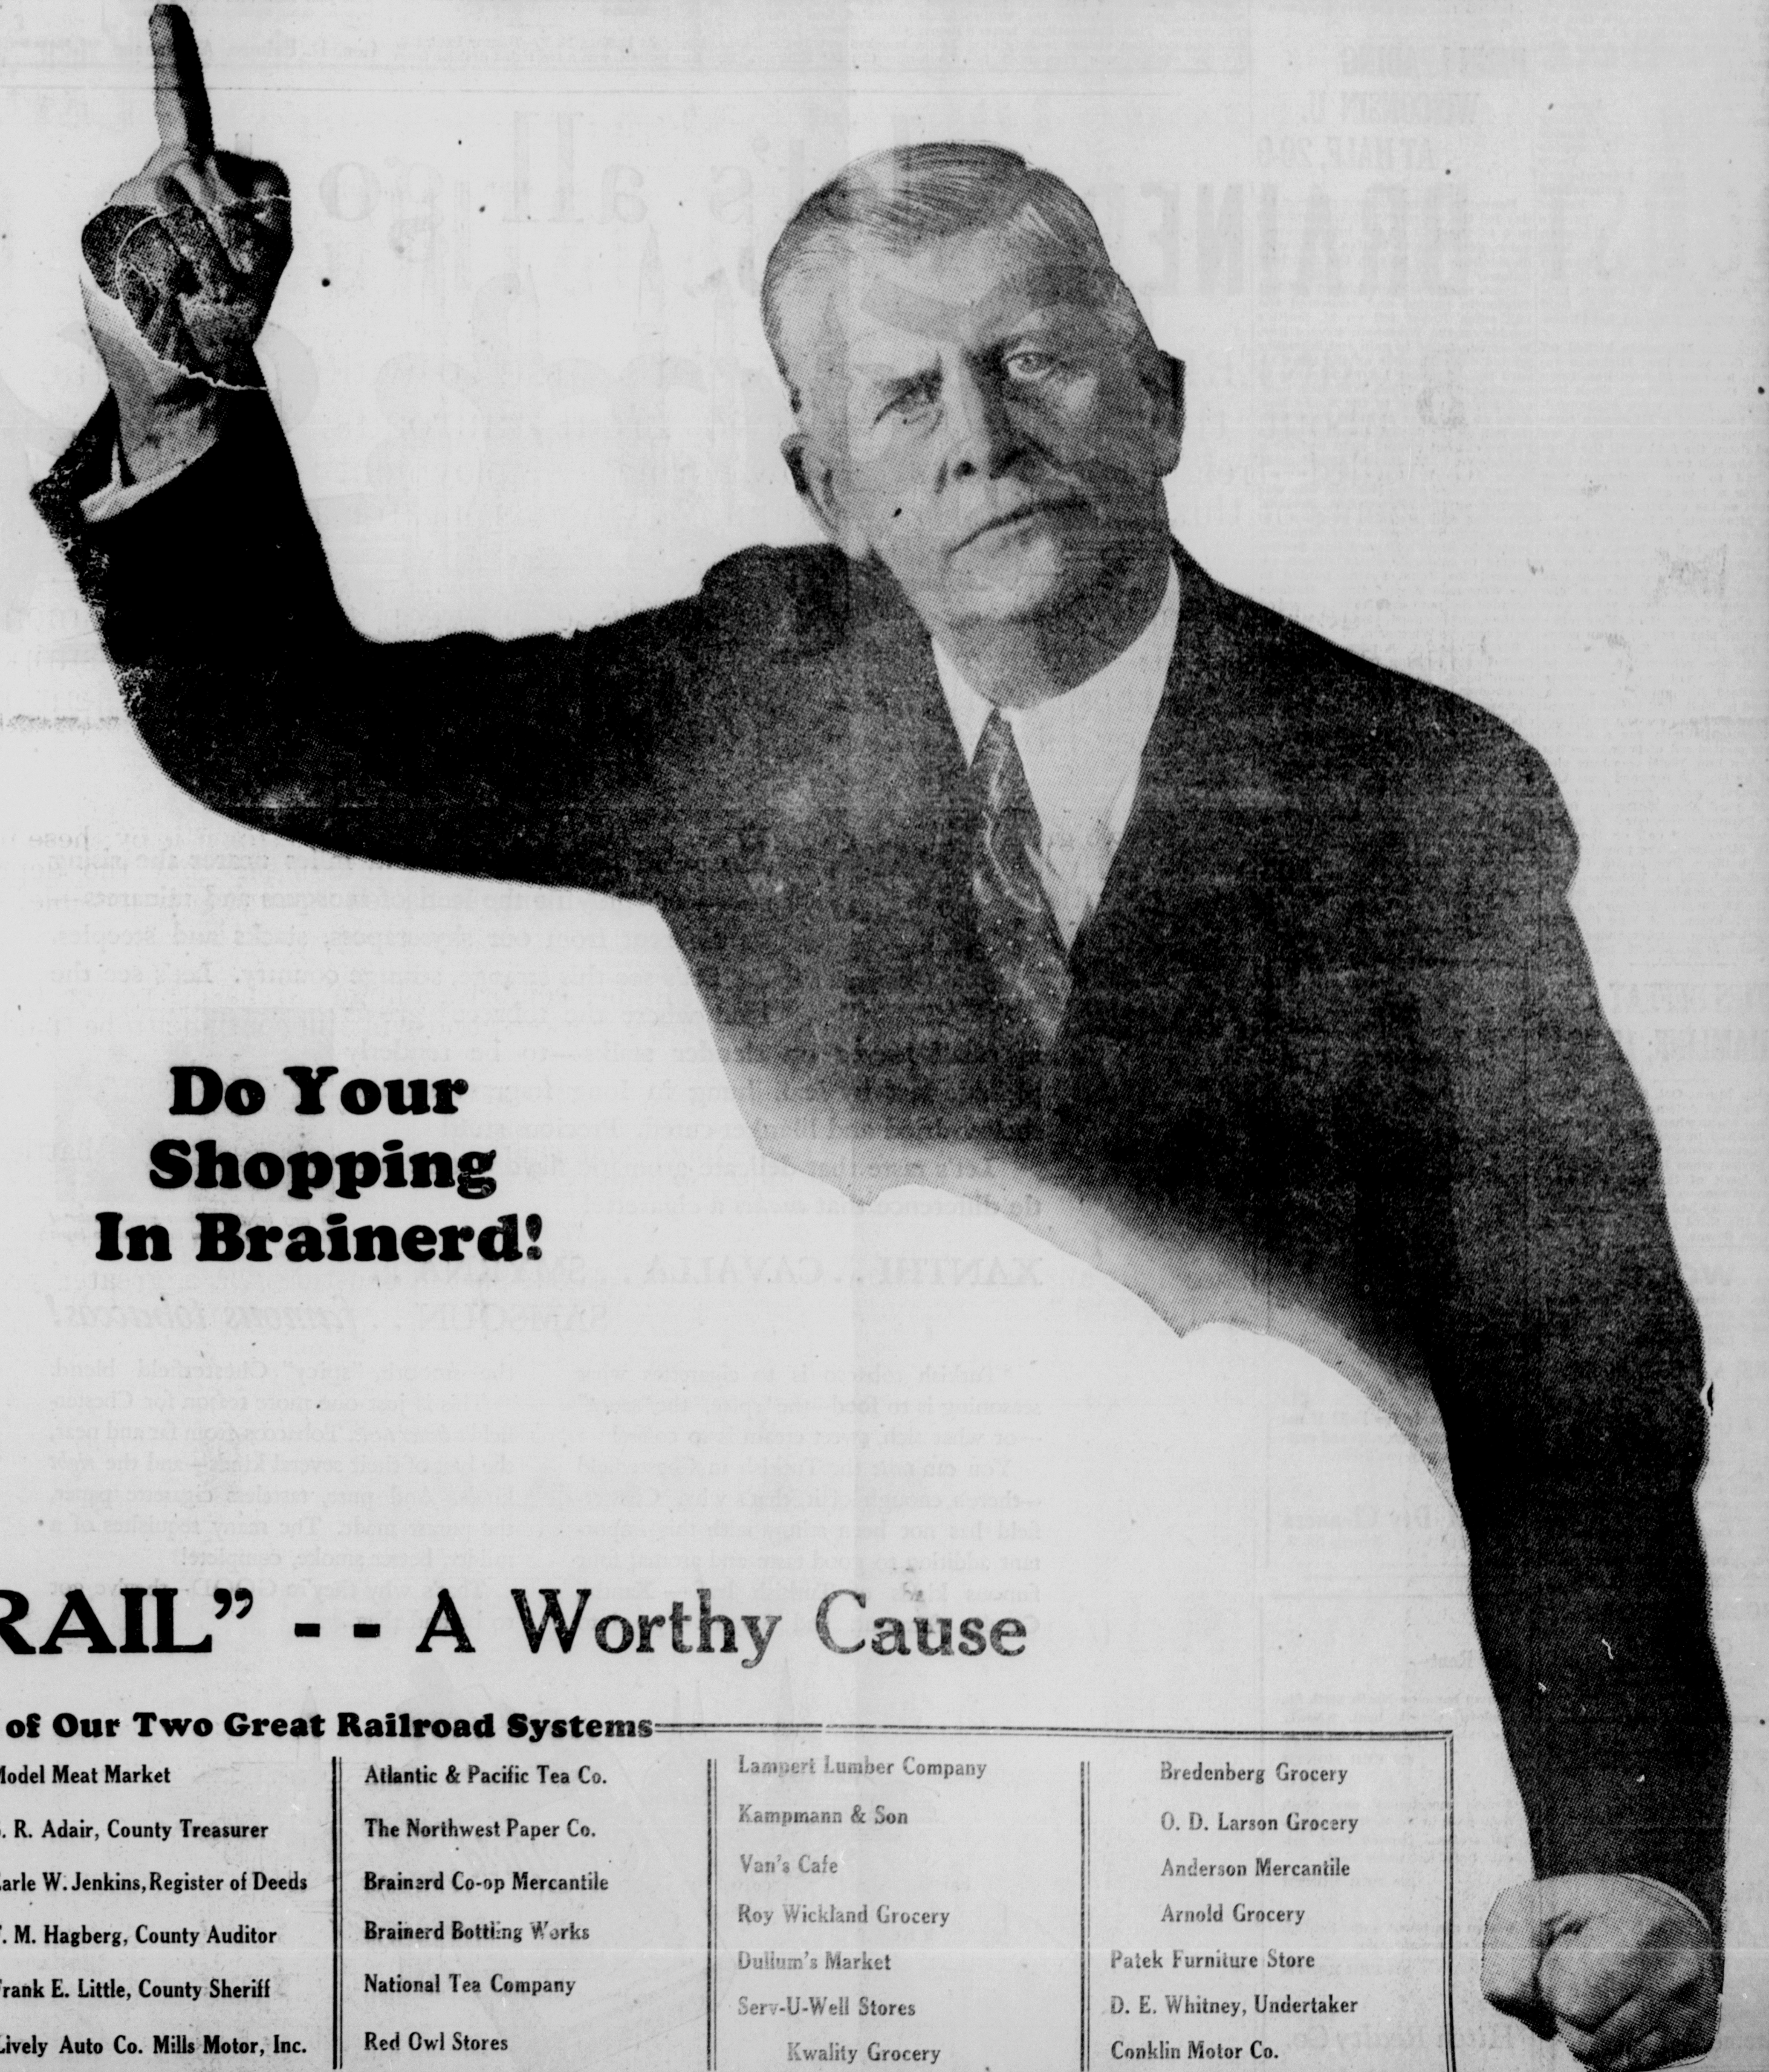

The time has come when we must unite and support our railroads if they are to win the battle against individual carriers that have no fixed investments in this community.

So, in Brainerd, let's all, citizens and merchants alike do our part in boosting for a greater prosperity. Let's all "Ship and Travel by Rail."

GOLF BY MOONLIGHT

Cleveland, Oct. 24.—(U.P.)—Night golf, aided only by the light of a pale moon, was successfully played last night by Harold Paddock, president of the Moreland Hills Country club, who scored a 38, three over par, on the first nine holes.

A jest in the clubhouse started the demonstration, Paddock contending to several cronies that if one suppressed his hooks and slices, night golf was a simple matter. Paddock proved his point by managing to stay out of the bunkers. Friends held a white handkerchief behind the cup for his approach shots.

BROUILLARD WINS WELTER CROWN BY TROUTING THOMPSON IN 12 ROUNDS

By United Press

At Boston—The world's welterweight championship belonged to Lou Brouillard of Danielson, Conn., today by virtue of his hammer and tongs victory over Jack Thompson of Chicago at Boston Garden last night before 18,200 persons.

Brouillard snatched the championship from the Chicago negro in the face of predictions that his youth would be no match for the skilled Louis, defeated Lou Terry, 131, St. Thompson. The Connecticut boxer's 10-round decision victory in July in a Louis, knocked out Joe Pagalina, 129, no-title contest was discounted because of Thompson's poor condition. Brouillard weighed 146½ and Thompson 146.

All but two rounds were awarded to Brouillard. The second was counted even and the 14th was won by Thompson on a whirlwind finish that had Brouillard backing into the ropes.

At St. Louis—Jow Ghnoully, 128, St. Louis, defeated Lou Terry, 131, St. Louis (15); Johnny Kaiser, 127, St. Louis, defeated Joe Pagalina, 129, Louisville (2); Al Stillman, 168, St.

Louis, knocked out Chick Raines, 161, Dodge City, Kan. (1); Allen Whitlow, 131, Phoenix, defeated Johnny Nichols, 131, Tulsa (8); Woodrow Williams, St. Louis, 121, defeated Ray Palmer, 125, St. Louis (8).

At Hollywood—Cecil Payne, 136, Kentucky, decided Bobby Pacho, 136, Hollywood, in 10 rounds. Baby Sal Dorio decided Lloyd Smith in four rounds. Martin Zuniga defeated Joe Caldez in four rounds.

At San Francisco—Tony Poloni, 170, Reno, defeated Jimmy Hannah, 174, Pocastello, Idaho, in 10 rounds. Hannah was knocked down twice and Poloni once.

At Buffalo, N. Y.—Tommy Paul, 123, Buffalo, won a ten round decision from

Johnny Farr, 130, Cincinnati, last night.

At San Diego, Calif.—After being floored five times in the third round, four times for the count of nine and saved by the bell the last time, Al Trulmans, 151, San Diego, came back to knock out Charlie Feraci, 153, New Orleans, in the ninth round of a scheduled ten round battle last night.

At Cleveland—George Pavlick, Cleveland light heavyweight, knocked out

Where Turkish tobacco comes from

Eastward ho! Four thousand miles nearer the rising sun—let's go! To the land of mosques and minarets—so different from our skyscrapers, stacks and steeples.

Let's see this strange, strange country. Let's see the land where the tobacco* grows in small leaves on slender stalks—to be tenderly picked, leaf by leaf, hung in long fragrant strings, shelter-dried and blanket-cured. Precious stuff!

Let's taste that delicate aromatic flavor—that subtle difference that makes a cigarette!

XANTHI . . CAVALLA . . SMYRNA . .

SAMSOUN . . famous tobaccos!

*Turkish tobacco is to cigarettes what seasoning is to food—the "spice," the "sauce"—or what rich, sweet cream is to coffee!

You can taste the Turkish in Chesterfield—there's enough of it, that's why. Chesterfield has not been stingy with this important addition to good taste and aroma; four famous kinds of Turkish leaf—Xanthi, Cavalla, Samsoun and Smyrna—go into the smooth, "spicy" Chesterfield blend.

This is just one more reason for Chesterfield's better taste. Tobaccos from far and near, the best of their several kinds—and the right kinds. And pure, tasteless cigarette paper, the purest made. The many requisites of a milder, better smoke, complete!

That's why they're GOOD—they've got to be and they are.

GOLF BY MOONLIGHT

Cleveland, Oct. 24.—(UP)—Night golf, aided only by the light of a pale moon, was successfully played last night by Harold Paddock, president of the Moreland Hills Country club, who scored a 38, three over par, on the first nine holes.

A jest in the clubhouse started the demonstration, Paddock contending to several cronies that if one suppressed his hooks and slices, night golf was a simple matter.

Paddock proved his point by managing to stay out of the bunkers. Friends held a white handkerchief behind the cup for his approach shots.

PENN LEADING

WISCONSIN U.

AT HALF, 20-0

Pennsylvania on its own gridiron today led the University of Wisconsin 20 to 0 at the half of the intercollegiate game, according to United Press wire dispatches. The play in the first half follows:

First quarter—Penn kicked off but Wisconsin punted and recovered the ball when Kabat fell on M. Smith's fumble on the Wisconsin 40-yard line. Wisconsin failed to gain and Schneller punted out of bounds on the Penn 23-yard line. Munger led an advance to the 48-yard line, where Wisconsin held, and Perina punted to the 8-yard line. After an exchange of kicks Penn took the ball on the 38-yard line from where Perina cut out around right end for a touchdown. M. Smith kicked goal. Score: Penn, 7; Wisconsin, 0.

Penn kicked off to Rehbohl, who was downed on the 23-yard line. Rehbohl, Schneller and McGuire advanced to the 45-yard line from where Schneller punted to Penn's 20-yard line. Perina punted to midfield, where Riblett recovered for Penn. Perina punted to the Wisconsin 20-yard line. Rehbohl fumbled the punt and Raffel recovered as the quarter ended. Score first quarter: Penn, 7; Wisconsin, 0.

Second quarter—A pass, Munger to Onderdunk, subbing for M. Smith at quarterback, gave Penn its second touchdown. Gette's goal kick was unsuccessful. Score: Penn, 13; Wisconsin, 0.

Wisconsin staged a march after taking the kick-off and advanced to the Penn 30-yard line. Perina intercepted Schneller's pass and returned 52 yards to his own 33-yard line. Wisconsin held and Perina punted over the goal. Schneller kicked out to Penn's 39-yard line. Late in the period, Onderdunk ran back one of Schneller's kicks 15 yards to Penn's 48-yard line. Ford cut around his own right end and dashed 51 yards for a touchdown. Onderdunk kicked goal. Period score: Penn 13; Wisconsin 0.

Score at half: Penn 20; Wisconsin 0.

BROUILLARD WINS WELTER CROWN BY TROUTING THOMPSON IN 12 ROUNDS

By United Press

At Boston—The world's welterweight championship belonged to Lou Brouillard of Danielson, Conn., today by virtue of his hammer and tongs victory over Jack Thompson of Chicago at Boston Garden last night before 18,200 persons.

Brouillard snatched the championship from the Chicago negro in the face of predictions that his youth would be no match for the skilled Thompson. The Connecticut boxer's 10-round decision victory in July in a no-title contest was discounted because of Thompson's poor condition. Brouillard weighed 146½ and Thompson 146.

All but two rounds were awarded to Brouillard. The second was counted even and the 14th was won by Thompson on a whirlwind finish that had Brouillard backing into the ropes.

At St. Louis—Jow Ghnoully, 128, St. Louis, defeated Lou Terry, 131, St. Louis (15); Johnny Kaiser, 127, St. Louis, knocked out Joe Pagalina, 129, Louisville (2); Al Stillman, 168, St.

Louis, knocked out Chick Raines, 161, Dodge City, Kan. (1); Allen Whitlow, 131, Phoenix, defeated Johnny Nichols, 131, Tulsa (8); Woodrow Williams, St. Louis, 121, defeated Ray Palmer, 125, St. Louis (8).

At Hollywood—Cecil Payne, 136, Kentucky, decided Bobby Pachon, 136, Hollywood, in 10 rounds. Baby Sal Dorio decided Lloyd Smith in four rounds. Martin Zuniga defeated Joe Caldez in four rounds.

At San Francisco—Tony Poloni, 170, Reno, defeated Jimmy Hannah, 174, Pocastello, Idaho, in 10 rounds. Hannah was knocked down twice and Poloni once.

At Buffalo, N. Y.—Tommy Paul, 123, Buffalo, won a ten round decision from

Johnny Farr, 130, Cincinnati, last night.

At San Diego, Calif.—After being floored five times in the third round, four times for the count of nine and saved by the bell the last time, Al Trulmans, 151, San Diego, came back to knock out Charlie Feraci, 153, New Orleans, in the ninth round of a scheduled ten round battle last night.

At Cleveland—George Pavlick, Cleveland light heavyweight, knocked out

Jimmy Dorsey, Detroit, in the second round of a scheduled six-round bout. Eddie Simms, Cleveland, decided Joe Roske, Akron (6); Al Getchell, Cleveland, won from Joe Martin, Lorain, O. (6).

Where Turkish tobacco comes from

Eastward ho! Four thousand miles nearer the rising sun—let's go! To the land of mosques and minarets—so different from our skyscrapers, stacks and steeples.

Let's see this strange, strange country. Let's see the land where the tobacco* grows in small leaves on slender stalks—to be tenderly picked, leaf by leaf, hung in long fragrant strings, shelter-dried and blanket-cured. Precious stuff!

Let's taste that delicate aromatic flavor—that subtle difference that makes a cigarette!

XANTHI .. CAVALLA .. SMYRNA ..

SAMSOUN .. famous tobaccos!

*Turkish tobacco is to cigarettes what seasoning is to food—the "spice," the "sauce"—or what rich, sweet cream is to coffee!

You can taste the Turkish in Chesterfield—there's enough of it, that's why. Chesterfield has not been stingy with this important addition to good taste and aroma; four famous kinds of Turkish leaf—Xanthi, Cavalla, Samsoun and Smyrna—go into the smooth, "spicy" Chesterfield blend.

This is just one more reason for Chesterfield's better taste. Tobaccos from far and near, the best of their several kinds—and the right kinds. And pure, tasteless cigarette paper, the purest made. The many requisites of a milder, better smoke, complete!

That's why they're GOOD—they've got to be and they are.

CAN'T LEAVE CIVILIZATION--

That Florida chap who set out to spend a year on his own in the wilderness—accompanied, so to speak, only by a set of false teeth and a pair of glasses—must be thinking things these days about the encroachments of civilization on the great open spaces.

This man, as you may remember, built a little hut in the wilds and tried to prove that a civilized man could go back to nature and make a go of it. For about a year everything went fine; but at last he landed in jail, because he had dined on pelican eggs from a federally-protected rookery somewhere along the beach.

His exploit may prove that a man can go very well without any of the tools or comforts of modern society. But it also proves that it is almost impossible for the ordinary man to get out of touch with civilization, no matter how hard he may try or how far he may go; and the fact may help to explain a good part of the subconscious discontent with which all of us, now and then, look around on our environment.

For there is in the land a growing feeling that the world is too much with us. Like Wadsworth, people are wondering if the eternal round of getting and spending isn't a little bit more exacting than it need be. The lot of the untutored savage in his primitive hut looks, occasionally, like something rather good.

But there isn't, really, any escape. The Florida man made a very good stab at it, but even the birds' nests that supplied him with food were under the care of Uncle Sam, and to feed himself with his bare hands in a remote solitude he had to break a federal law; and the rest of us may get what comfort we can out of the thought that we knew it all along.

So, it seems, we have to make the best of it where we are. We cannot get away. We, and our children, and our children's children shall have to put up with crowds, and the noise of crowds, and confusion, and the unceasing activity of millions of energetic neighbors; and somehow, from our own resources, we must find those values which other men used to find in solitude, along the lonely trails that led through silent forests to empty beaches along the sea.

ADVERTISING FOR PHYSICIANS--

When Dr. Allen B. Kanavel, president of the American College of Surgeons, pleaded the other day for legitimate medical advertising to combat "charlatans and medical hi-jackers," he touched on a point to which physicians the country over have been giving much thought lately.

As things stand now, the quack and the faker advertise without restraint; but the scientifically trained physician, more interested in promoting the health of his fellows than in building up his own bank account, cannot.

The rule against advertising by physicians, of course, was designed for the protection of the public, and it was an excellent rule. But it is worth considering whether the times have not changed enough to make some modification of it advisable.

Theodore Dreiser's action in organizing a committee of U. S. senators and private citizens to go into the Kentucky coal fields and investigate conditions there may prove a move of considerable value to the country at large.

From all reports, something rather startling has been going on in those coal fields. When 34 miners are under indictment for murder, it is obvious that a large package of trouble has been opened by someone; yet there has been such a confusion of charges and counter-charges that it is hard for the man in the street to tell just what may be wrong.

If Mr. Dreiser's group can give us a clear picture of affairs it will be performing a real public service.

TELLING THE TRUTH--

Lincoln Steffens, famous newspaperman of the old muck-raking days announces at his home in California, that he has been practicing the art of dying for 10 years. In fact, he says that to all intents and purposes he is dead, having arranged his affairs, written his will and set himself free from the necessity of earning a living or worrying about what his reading public will think of him. And he likes it very much.

"You see," he says, "now that I am dead I can voice honest opinions. All my life I have been trying not to lie. But no one wants to know the truth. Only dead persons and fools speak the truth. I am a happy man because I am dead."

Steffens has earned the right to separate himself from the demands of the living. He has spent an active life telling his fellow-citizens some unpleasant and important truths—about the McNamara case, about city politics, about labor conditions, about the Russian revolution and similar matters—and his fellow-citizens bit him in the ankle for thanks. And he provides us, now, with an illustration of the fact that the most effective and dangerous of censorships does not come from arrogant office-holders but from the general public.

No one wants to know the truth. Is that true? Where the truth is three or four centuries old, it isn't. But where it involves our emotions, or our prejudices, or our pocketbooks—well, it seems to work out that way.

Who of us, for instance, in the spring of 1929, would have listened to anyone who said that stock prices were far too high and that our industrial machine was geared to too fast a pace?

Who of us, in 1917 and 1918, would have listened patiently to anyone who suggested that Germany was not solely responsible for the World War?

How many of us, today, would listen to an economist who happened to remark that Russia's economic system might be better than our own? Wouldn't we simply tell him to shut up, without bothering to find out if he were right?

So it goes. We are all censors; and men like Mr. Steffens, who have uncovered many truths that run counter to our established notions, know that a writer who has a living to make must step warily.

While a "rebel" army of about 500 Iowa farmers has been mobilized, reinforcements have been rushed to the aid of the national guardsmen also in the revolt against T. B. cattle testing. Iowa farmers might just as well reconcile themselves to the test as Governor Dan Turner will not relent until the statute is carried out.

Gems of Peril

HAZEL ROSS HAILEY
©1931 BY NEA Service Inc.

"If the jewels ever turn up," said Kane, "or if we find the car, we'll have positive evidence."

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Rich old MRS. JUPITER is robbed and murdered during an engagement party she is giving for her secretary, MARY HARKNESS. Mary's scapegrace brother, EDDIE, is supposed to have been in the house at the murder hour.

DICK RUTHER, blue-blooded young lawyer, Mary's fiancé, advises her to keep silent about having arranged to meet Eddie secretly, until he can locate the boy. Eddie has disappeared.

Mary prevents a mob, BESSIE, from telling BOWEN, police reporter for the Star, about Eddie's supposed visit. Dick telephones that he has found Eddie and will take her to see him that afternoon.

Dick oversteers, and Bowen drives Mary to the rendezvous. Eddie is run down by a car as he crosses the street to meet Mary. Delicious, in the hospital, he mumbles about a fly. He dies.

Weeks of police investigation come to nothing, and finally INSPECTOR KANE tells Mary the case is closed.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER X

COLD fury such as she had never dreamed she could feel possessed Mary at Inspector Kane's indifferent words. Within a few hours of each other, someone's hand had struck down the two people she loved best on earth, except her sweetheart, Dick. She had thought of the wheels of justice as grinding slowly but surely toward the capture of that man. While he lived, how could anyone with a drop of pity in his heart, rest content?

"Everything that could be done has been done," Kane said. "If the jewels ever turn up—or if we find the car, we'll have positive evidence. Nothing to do but wait."

Mary suffered a feeling of vast disillusionment concerning the processes of justice and that great institution known as "the Police."

Perhaps Kane felt her criticism, for his affability gave way to grievance.

"Police work is not so simple as some people think, Miss Harkness," he told her. "It's hard enough at best, and when people put stumbling blocks in our way—well, if you'd been frank with us about your brother coming to the house that night, we could have had the story out of him at once—and the case settled. It's too late now. We can do nothing but let the matter drop."

Slowly the implication of his words came home to the girl.

"What do you mean by that?" she asked. "You mean you think Eddie came in—and killed—"

Kane looked at her keenly.

"I meant only what is self-evident from the facts in the case," he said. He made a restless movement of dismissal. "I don't think we'll get anywhere thrashing this out any further, Miss Harkness. You come in and see me again any time you like. If I have anything to report, I'll be glad to tell you."

Mary said, "Tell me what you mean!" implacably.

"Well, what do you think?" he burst out. "What are the facts?" He held up two massive fingers and ticked them off, one at a time. "Your brother had opportunity, and he had motive. What does it matter that he never did such a thing before in his life? How do you know he didn't? Why do you know about him, anyway?" Before she could answer, he added with an air of wisdom, "Nobody on earth knows less about a man than his sister. Unless it's his mother, maybe."

"You think that Eddie killed Mrs. Jupiter?" Mary was shivering uncontrollably. She sat stiffly, fighting for self-control, cold fingers gripping tightly the gloves lying in her lap.

If she cried she would make a fool of herself, and this man and his stupidity must be fought with other weapons than that. While she struggled to stop the tears that squeezed out and ran wetly down the sides of her nose, Kane went on "making his case."

"Eddie had to get his hands on $15,000 and do it in a hurry. We know that much. I had those boys in, those roommates of his. One's an elevator boy in an office building. He was the one got your brother in the way of following the races. He used to place bets for 'clients' in the building. Eddie made a little pile and was feeling rich, so he went down to the tracks and started playing the sport. He met some 'big shots,' and the boys didn't see quite so much of him for awhile. But it wasn't long before he was back. He'd got hold of the long end of a 15-to-1 shot, and couldn't pay off."

"It must have surprised him some when the chap, whoever he was, demanded his money. That's the trouble with a kid like that playing for big stakes. When he loses, he's like a woman—he wants to wiggle out of it. Every man hates a welsker. Eddie knew that, and he knew more than that—if he didn't come through quick, he was due for a good beating, at least. They've got funny ideas around the race-tracks about taking bigger odds than you can afford to lose."

"Evidently the chap Eddie picked up with was a hard cookie. Maybe he needed the money in a hurry to meet obligations of his own. Maybe he was just sore and wanted to give the kid a lesson. Anyway, he put it up to the kid to come through, or—"

"In desperation, Eddie went to your employer and asked for a loan. Jupiter didn't like kids much, does he? I guess he had his hands full with that wild one of his own. Anyhow he offered him a job at $25 a week learning the automobile business. You can figure out yourself how long it'd take Eddie to pay off at that rate, even providing the guy would wait."

"Why didn't he come to you for it? Well, he knew you didn't have it. And he had some idea you'd bowl him out, I expect. Jupiter tells me the kid made him swear not to tell you he'd even asked."

"There was nothing left but to take it off people that had it and wouldn't miss it—the guests at your party. He made it all right with you to let him in, came and went in the other fellow's car. Only it wasn't in the cards that he was to shoot. That was pure funk."

"The old girl was no set-up, though—she yelled. And that was her big mistake. If she'd kept still and forked over, she'd be alive today. He knew he had to silence her or have it all come out and spoil your party, not to mention your life, so he shot her."

"I'm willing," Kane said, sardonically. "Why don't you tell me where he is?"

Mary perceived that this was humor, but she was not amused.

"Surely, the car—"

"There's a hundred Lorimers like that in this part of the country, most of 'em parked in garages you have to have an engraved, gold-edged invitation to get into. My theory is the man's a society blood. I wouldn't be surprised if that Lorimer was parked in some Park Avenue garage right this minute, and the man that owns it dining at the Ritz."

"It was a Lorimer that brought—wherever came to rob the horse that night, too. Doesn't that look as if the murderer wanted Eddie killed?"

"Yeah, I know. We thought of that. But it don't tie up. Look here. If anybody was trying to kill your brother to keep his mouth shut, would he take a chance on knocking him down with a car? It would have taken perfect timing to be at that particular spot at that particular time. No, the kid was rattled and got hit, that's all. It's them big cars that shoot through like that—some Wall Street guy tryin' to make time up a side-street, beating the lights at a corner where there was no cop. Might 'a' been a Rolls or a Mercedes—any of them big cars. It happened to be a Lorimer, that was all. There was a uniformed driver, like they all have. Pure coincidence, Miss Harkness."

It had looked so damnably clear to her before—the cars being the same, that deadly swerve. Just as Eddie was crossing the street to speak to her, to tell her the whole story. Now it seemed a dim, impractical theory. And she could never prove it now. Eddie's lips were sealed. Only one man knew—the man in the Lorimer car.

She would find that man and make him talk. She would get from him the true story, somehow. If no one else would do it, she would do it herself. The absurdity of this fierce resolve did not occur to her. She was too grimly serious.

Oh, if only Eddie were here—her eyes filled with tears.

"Oh, if only I'd gotten there sooner! It always seems to be my fault. My carelessness. I'm to blame for it all!"

Kane chose her moment of weakness to grow pompous.

"Not that, Miss Harkness, but you certainly might have been frank with us than you were."

That was a sore spot with him, apparently, and would remain so.

"Oh, please! I've explained that so many times!"

"I know. That boy friend of yours told you to keep still. He'll get too big for his boots some day. Withholding evidence. You know, I suppose, he went to the district attorney and asked him not to make a special investigation. The family was satisfied, he said, to let the matter drop."

"Dirk did that? Why, he wouldn't do such a thing!"

"Wouldn't he? He and his father represent Jupiter, you know. And Jupiter wants the whole inquiry quashed. Told me not to go any farther with it, and refused any further help."

Mary gasped. "Why, I heard him say he'd never be satisfied until he found the man who killed his wife!"

"Maybe he thinks as I do," Inspector Kane said.

CAN'T LEAVE CIVILIZATION--

That Florida chap who set out to spend a year on his own in the wilderness—accompanied, so to speak, only by a set of false teeth and a pair of glasses—must be thinking things these days about the encroachments of civilization on the great open spaces.

This man, as you may remember, built a little hut in the wilds and tried to prove that a civilized man could go back to nature and make a go of it. For about a year everything went fine; but at last he landed in jail, because he had dined on pelican eggs from a federally-protected rookery somewhere along the beach.

His exploit may prove that a man can go very well without any of the tools or comforts of modern society. But it also proves that it is almost impossible for the ordinary man to get out of touch with civilization, no matter how hard he may try or how far he may go; and the fact may help to explain a good part of the subconscious discontent with which all of us, now and then, look around on our environment.

For there is in the land a growing feeling that the world is too much with us. Like Wadsworth, people are wondering if the eternal round of getting and spending isn't a little bit more exacting than it need be. The lot of the untutored savage in his primitive hut looks, occasionally, like something rather good.

But there isn't, really, any escape. The Florida man made a very good stab at it, but even the birds' nests that supplied him with food were under the care of Uncle Sam, and to feed himself with his bare hands in a remote solitude he had to break a federal law; and the rest of us may get what comfort we can out of the thought that we knew it all along.

So, it seems, we have to make the best of it where we are. We cannot get away. We, and our children, and our children's children shall have to put up with crowds, and the noise of crowds, and confusion, and the unceasing activity of millions of energetic neighbors; and somehow, from our own resources, we must find those values which other men used to find in solitude, along the lonely trails that led through silent forests to empty beaches along the sea.

ADVERTISING FOR PHYSICIANS--

When Dr. Allen B. Kanavel, president of the American College of Surgeons, pleaded the other day for legitimate medical advertising to combat "charlatans and medical hi-jackers," he touched on a point to which physicians the country over have been giving much thought lately.

As things stand now, the quack and the faker advertise without restraint; but the scientifically trained physician, more interested in promoting the health of his fellows than in building up his own bank account, cannot.

The rule against advertising by physicians, of course, was designed for the protection of the public, and it was an excellent rule. But it is worth considering whether the times have not changed enough to make some modification of it advisable.

Theodore Dreiser's action in organizing a committee of U. S. senators and private citizens to go into the Kentucky coal fields and investigate conditions there may prove a move of considerable value to the country at large.

From all reports, something rather startling has been going on in those coal fields. When 34 miners are under indictment for murder, it is obvious that a large package of trouble has been opened by someone; yet there has been such a confusion of charges and counter-charges that it is hard for the man in the street to tell just what may be wrong.

If Mr. Dreiser's group can give us a clear picture of affairs it will be performing a real public service.

TELLING THE TRUTH--

Lincoln Steffens, famous newspaperman of the old muck-raking days announces at his home in California, that he has been practicing the art of dying for 10 years. In fact, he says that to all intents and purposes he is dead, having arranged his affairs, written his will and set himself free from the necessity of earning a living or worrying about what his reading public will think of him. And he likes it very much.

"You see," he says, "now that I am dead I can voice honest opinions. All my life I have been trying not to lie. But no one wants to know the truth. Only dead persons and fools speak the truth. I am a happy man because I am dead."

Steffens has earned the right to separate himself from the demands of the living. He has spent an active life telling his fellow-citizens some unpleasant and important truths—about the McNamara case, about city politics, about labor conditions, about the Russian revolution and similar matters—and his fellow-citizens bit him in the ankle for thanks. And he provides us, now, with an illustration of the fact that the most effective and dangerous of censorships does not come from arrogant office-holders but from the general public.

No one wants to know the truth. Is that true? Where the truth is three or four centuries old, it isn't. But where it involves our emotions, or our prejudices, or our pocketbooks—well, it seems to work out that way.

Who of us, for instance, in the spring of 1929, would have listened to anyone who said that stock prices were far too high and that our industrial machine was geared to too fast a pace?

Who of us, in 1917 and 1918, would have listened patiently to anyone who suggested that Germany was not solely responsible for the World War?

How many of us, today, would listen to an economist who happened to remark that Russia's economic system might be better than our own? Wouldn't we simply tell him to shut up, without bothering to find out if he were right?

So it goes. We are all censors; and men like Mr. Steffens, who have uncovered many truths that run counter to our established notions, know that a writer who has a living to make must step warily.

While a "rebel" army of about 500 Iowa farmers has been mobilized, reinforcements have been rushed to the aid of the national guardsmen also in the revolt against T. B. cattle testing. Iowa farmers might just as well reconcile themselves to the test as Governor Dan Turner will not relent until the statute is carried out.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Rich old MRS. JUPITER is robbed and murdered during an engagement party she is giving for her secretary, MARY HARKNESS. Mary's scapegrace brother, EDDIE, is supposed to have been in the house at the murder hour. DICK RUTHER, blue-blooded young lawyer, Mary's fiancé, advises her to keep silent about having arranged to meet Eddie secretly, until he can locate the boy. Eddie has disappeared. Mary prevents a maid, BESSIE, from telling BOWEN, police reporter for the Star, about Eddie's supposed visit. Dick telephones that he has found Eddie and will take her to see him that afternoon.

Dick overhears and Bowen drives Mary to the rendezvous. Eddie is run down by a car as he crosses the street to meet Mary. Delicious, in the hospital, he mumbles about a fly. He dies. Weeks of police investigation come to nothing, and finally INSPECTOR KANE tells Mary the case is closed.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER X

COLD fury such as she had never dreamed she could feel possessed Mary at Inspector Kane's indifferent words. Within a few hours of each other, someone's hand had struck down the two people she loved best on earth, except her sweetheart, Dick. She had thought of the wheels of justice as grinding slowly but surely toward the capture of that man. While he lived, how could anyone with a drop of pity in his heart, rest content?

"Everything that could be done has been done," Kane said. "If the jewels ever turn up—or if we find the car, we'll have positive evidence. Nothing to do but wait."

Mary suffered a feeling of vast disillusionment concerning the processes of justice and that great institution known as "the Police."

Perhaps Kane felt her criticism, for his affability gave way to grievance.

"Police work is not so simple as some people think, Miss Harkness," he told her. "It's hard enough at best, and when people put stumbling blocks in our way—well—"

If you'd been frank with us about your brother coming to the house that night, we could have had the story out of him at once—and the case settled. It's too late now. We can do nothing but let the matter drop."

Slowly the implication of his words came home to the girl.

"What do you mean by that?" she asked. "You mean you think Eddie came in—and killed—"

Kane looked at her keenly.

"I meant only what is self-evident from the facts in the case," he said. He made a restless movement of dismissal. "I don't think we'll get anywhere thrashing this out any further, Miss Harkness. You come in and see me again any time you like. If I have anything to report, I'll be glad to tell you."

Mary said, "Tell me what you meant!" implacably.

"Well, what do you think?" he burst out. "What are the facts?" He held up two massive fingers and ticked them off, one at a time. "Your brother had opportunity, and he had motive. What does it matter that he never did such a thing before in his life? How do you know he didn't? Why do you know about him, anyway?"

Before she could answer, he added with an air of wisdom, "Nobody on earth knows less about a man than his sister. Unless it's his mother, maybe."

"You think that Eddie killed Mrs. Jupiter?" Mary was shivering uncontrollably. She sat stiffly, fighting for self-control, cold fingers gripping tightly the gloves lying in her lap.

"There was nothing left but to take it off people that had it and wouldn't miss it—the guests at your party. He made it all right with you to let him in, came and went in the other fellow's car. Only it wasn't in the cards that he was to shoot. That was pure funk."

"The old girl was no set-up, though—she yelled. And that was her big mistake. If she'd kept still and forked over, she'd be alive today. He knew he had to silence her or have it all come out and spoil your party, not to mention your life, so he shot her."

MARY listened with fascinated attention as the links fell into place, forming a chain of probability so plausible that for the moment she was numbly into seeing the thing through his eyes.

"He may not have meant to kill her, I don't know," Kane continued. "The gun went off right in my hand. God, I've heard 'em say it a thousand times! But he plugged her just the same, even if it was just a nervous twitch of the finger. Instinct of self-preservation, they call it. I call it funk."

"If," said Mary, "all this should be true, why don't you arrest the other man—this 'hard cookie' you speak of? Eddie was just a boy. Nineteen. He didn't know his way around, and that man did. He's to blame, as much as Eddie—more so. Why don't you arrest him?"

"I'm willing," Kane said, sardonically. "Why don't you tell me where he is?"

Mary perceived that this was humor, but she was not amused. "Surely, the car—"

"There's a hundred Lorimers like that in this part of the country, most of 'em parked in garages you have to have an engraved, gold-edged invitation to get into. My theory is the man's a society blood. I wouldn't be surprised if that Lorimer was parked in some Park Avenue garage right this minute, and the man that owns it dining at the Ritz."

"It was a Lorimer that brought—"

—whoever came to rob the house that night, too. Doesn't that look as if the murderer wanted Eddie killed?"

"Yeah, I know. We thought of that. But it don't tie up. Look here. If anybody was trying to kill your brother to keep his mouth shut, would he take a chance on knocking him down with a car? It would have taken perfect timing to be at that particular spot at that particular time. No, the kid was"

"If the jewels ever turn up," said Kane, "or if we find the car, we'll have positive evidence."

IF she cried she would make a fool of herself, and this man and his stupidity must be fought with other weapons than that. While she struggled to stop the tears that squeezed out and ran wetly down the sides of her nose, Kane went on "making his case."

"Eddie had to get his hands on $15,000 and do it in a hurry. We know that much. I had those boys in, those roommates of his. One's an elevator boy in an office building. He was the one got your brother in the way of following the races. He used to place bets for 'clients' in the building. Eddie made a little pile and was feeling rich, so he went down to the tracks and started playing the sport. He met some 'big shots,' and the boys didn't see quite so much of him for awhile. But it wasn't long before he was back. He'd got hold of the long end of a 15-to-1 shot, and couldn't pay off."

"It must have surprised him some when the chap, whoever he was, demanded his money. That's the trouble with a kid like that playing for big stakes. When he loses, he's like a woman—he wants to wiggle out of it. Every man hates a welsker. Eddie knew that, and he knew more than that—it he didn't come through quick, he was due for a good beating-up, at least. They've got funny ideas around the race-tracks about taking bigger odds than you can afford to lose."

"Evidently the chap Eddie picked up with was a hard cookie. Maybe he needed the money in a hurry to meet obligations of his own. Maybe he was just sore and wanted to give the kid a lesson. Anyway, he put it up to the kid to come through, or—"

"In desperation, Eddie went to your employer and asked for a loan. Jupiter don't like kids much, does he? I guess he's had his hands full with that wild one of his own. Anyhow he offered him a job at $55 a week learning the automobile business. You can figure out your self how long it'd take Eddie to pay off at that rate, even providing the guy would wait."

"Why didn't he come to you for it? Well, he knew you didn't have it. And he had some idea you'd bawl him out, I expect. Jupiter tells me the kid made him swear not to tell you he'd even asked."

"There was nothing left but to take it off people that had it and wouldn't miss it—the guests at your party. He made it all right with you to let him in, came and went in the other fellow's car. Only it wasn't in the cards that he was to shoot. That was pure funk."

"The old girl was no set-up, though—she yelled. And that was her big mistake. If she'd kept still and forked over, she'd be alive today. He knew he had to silence her or have it all come out and spoil your party, not to mention your life, so he shot her."

MARY listened with fascinated attention as the links fell into place, forming a chain of probability so plausible that for the moment she was numbly into seeing the thing through his eyes.

"He may not have meant to kill her, I don't know," Kane continued. "The gun went off right in my hand. God, I've heard 'em say it a thousand times! But he plugged her just the same, even if it was just a nervous twitch of the finger. Instinct of self-preservation, they call it. I call it funk."

"If," said Mary, "all this should be true, why don't you arrest the other man—this 'hard cookie' you speak of? Eddie was just a boy. Nineteen. He didn't know his way around, and that man did. He's to blame, as much as Eddie—more so. Why don't you arrest him?"

"I'm willing," Kane said, sardonically. "Why don't you tell me where he is?"

rattled and got hit, that's all. It's their big cars that shoot through like that—some Wall Street guy tryin' to make time up a side-street, beating the lights at a corner where there was no cop. Might a' been a Rolls or a Mercedes—any of them big cars. It happened to be a Lorimer, that was all. There was a uniformed driver, like they all have. Pure coincidence, Miss Harkness."

IT had looked so damnably clear to her before—the cars being the same, that deadly swerve, just as Eddie was crossing the street to speak to her, to tell her the whole story. Now it seemed a dim, impractical theory. And she could never prove it, now. Eddie's lips were sealed. Only one man knew—the man in the Lorimer car.

She would find that man and make him talk. She would get from him the true story, somehow. If no one else would do it, she would do it herself. The absurdity of this fierce resolve did not occur to her. She was too grimly serious.

Oh, if only Eddie were here—her eyes filled with tears.

"Oh, if only I'd gotten there sooner! It always seems to be my fault. My carelessness, I'm to blame for it all!"

Kane chose her moment of weakness to grow pompous.

"Not that, Miss Harkness, but you certainly might have been franker with us than you were."

That was a sore spot with him, apparently, and would remain so.

"Oh, please! I've explained that so many times!"

"I know. That boy friend of yours told you to keep still. He'll get too big for his boots some day. Withholding evidence. You know, I suppose, he went to the district attorney and asked him not to make a special investigation. The family was satisfied, he said, to let the matter drop."

"Dick did that? Why, he wouldn't do such a thing!"

"Wouldn't he? He and his father represent Jupiter, you know. And Jupiter wants the whole inquiry quashed. Told me not to go any farther with it, and refused any further help."

Mary gasped. "Why, I heard him say he'd never be satisfied until he found the man who killed his wife!"

"Maybe he thinks as I do," Inspector Kane said.
